

Abstract

5 A consumer acceptable toothbrush and method of forming same, composed of a preformed components, which components are welding together by applying a hot gas to an end of each component until the surface of each end is molten, and bringing said molten ends together within a mold having the desired shape of the portion of the toothbrush 10 being welded.